Attendance Awareness Month

At the CDC, we emphasize the importance of building strong foundation of trust, consistency, and attendance. When a child misses school, they not only miss out on academic learning but on important social growth as well. Attendance Awareness Month is our way of ensuring all families and children understand the importance of coming to school each and every day. This month, we'll be celebrating with four fun days - Neon Day, College T-Shirt Day, Superhero Day, and Sports Day. We hope you and your child will join in the fun as they learn why showing up to school has an impact on their future.

09/06: Neon Day

09/13: College T-shirt Day

09/20: Superhero Day

09/27: Sports Day

Education

Photographs can play a significant part in your child's life and learning experience. Children will learn to make a connection between photos and written print when photos are displayed with labeling or documentation. Pictures can support a child's transition into a new environment such as a new school or home.

We encourage our families to share family pictures and special moments with their child's teachers to display in our classrooms. When children find their photo in the environment, they feel special. Seeing themselves amongst their peers and caregivers will make them feel as part of the group and add to their sense of belonging.

IDEAS: Making a scrapbook or photo journal for your child (individual and/or group). Having the photo books available for your child to look at and to share at school. Many children who are not yet speaking can use photos to share their message.
